Briannah E. Simmons

(She/her/hers), or Funny Simmons as some students call her, is very excited to get back to theater. She is most accustomed to being in front of the audience in parts including the titular role in Sarah Ruhl's Eurydice, Olivia in Twelfth Night, Athena/Chorus in Trojan Women, and a collection of delightful characters in Love/Sick (which performed right here at Black Box).

However, she also has plenty of experience after working as a technician for ASU's previous School of Music. Briannah loves all forms of theater-making, be it sewing a costume, painting a backdrop, or performing a part. She is very excited for this experience and hopes you enjoy this project of love and labor.
